The Lawnmower

Steve had come over to Nancy Wheeler's house for his weekly gossip session. Yeah, he liked to talk with her about boys sometimes. But before he could go in through the door, he was shocked to see... Billy Hargrove of all people. Mowing her lawn.

"Hey," he called out, lifting a hand in greeting. They'd gotten on better terms lately. "What're you doing out here?"

Billy paused and leaned against the lawnmower. His wifebeater (no reference to his dad) stuck to him nicely in certain spots just from how sweaty he was. His shorts were sweaty too, and damn, Billy had thick calves-- "Just mowin' lawns for some cash."

"Oh. That's cool."

He rolled his eyes. Suddenly though, Billy got an idea. He revved the lawnmower up and smirked. "Harrington, your ass is grass."

"...I don't get it."

Billy sighed.

"...are you saying you're going to beat me up again, or..." Steve furrowed his eyebrows.

"What? No!"

"Because I thought we were friends and all..."

"No, we are!"

"And then with the blow jobs..."

Billy flushed. "See I'm mowing lawns, and your ass is grass, so--"

"Enough with the threats, Hargrove!"

Billy facepalmed. "Holy shit why do I even like you."
